Musa Shteiwi holds a PhD in sociology from the University of Cincinnati. Shteiwi is currently the Director of the Center for Strategic Studies at the University of Jordan. He has more than 20 years of experience in teaching and research at the University of Jordan, in the areas of political sociology, human rights, development, and gender. His experience includes advisory and consultancy roles with governments, the UN, the World Bank, and other international organizations, and research institutions. In his sabbatical year (2006-2007), Shteiwi worked as Regional Advisor on Social Policies and Social Issues for UNESCWA. In this capacity, he provided technical support on social policies for Egypt, Bahrain, Kuwait, Oman, and Jordan. Musa Shteiwi’s particular skills lie in conceptualizing, conducting, and leading policy research projects and public opinion polls. He has played a key role as a team leader on many national and regional projects, the last of which was “Social Violence in Jordan: Causes and Solutions”. In 2001, he received the State Encouragement Award for his research in the field of women’s studies. Shteiwi has published more than 35 papers and books in the fields of development, social policies, poverty, unemployment, women, social classes, civil society and political parties, and youth.
