on

Reflections on 50 Years of Constitution-building

by

Yash Pal Ghai
Emeritus Professor, University of Hong Kong

Date and time: 6:00 pm, Wednesday, June 26
Location: Popper Room, CEU

In this lecture the world's most eminent scholar in the area of constitution-building will share some of his rich personal experiences gained in the area of constitution building over the last five decades. The audience will have a unique opportunity to learn more about the dynamics of these processes, and the failures and success stories.

Professor Yash Pal Ghai is a citizen of Kenya and a Professor emeritus of Public Law of the Universities of Warwick and Hong Kong. He studied law at the Universities of Oxford (UK) and Harvard (USA), is a Barrister-at-Law of the Middle Temple (London) and has served as visiting professor, key-note speaker etc. in many different countries. He is the author of a large number of books and articles in fields like Constitutional law, Democratisation, Development, Ethnicity, Human Rights, Minorities and Law and Social change.

His honours include membership of the British Academy and a CBE (Commander of the British Empire).

Throughout the years, Professor Ghai has been at the crossroads of many constitution-making processes, partly as an individual scholar, partly on behalf of the UNDP and other international instances. Following rich experiences in many countries in Asia, Africa and Oceania, his recent experiences included prominent positions in the constitutional processes of Kenya and Nepal. Recently he has been selected the Chairperson of Fiji's Constitutional Committee by the Fijian Government.
