

European Association for Comparative Economic Studies

Dear Prime Minister Viktor Orbán and Minister Zoltán Balog,

The news about the proposed legislation that would force the Central European University in Budapest to close down induced us to express our serious concern in this regard.

We think this step would have very negative consequences on academic freedom in your country, on the fundamental importance of having an open international academic environment and on the quality of tertiary education not only in Hungary, but also in the larger post-socialist region.

Our society, established in 1991, represents more than 300 scholars of comparative economics from all over the world, many of whom have cooperated or co-authored scientific articles or books with CEU researchers or have relied on their research results. We think the disappearance of CEU would represent a very serious loss not only to our but also to the world's scientific community.

Sincerely,

Jens Hölscher, University of Bournemouth

Jürgen Jerger, University of Regensburg, IOS Regensburg

David M. Kemme, University of Memphis

Michael Keren, Hebrew University

Hartmut Lehmann, University of Bologna

Satoshi Mizobata, Kyoto University

Martin Myant, ETUI

Magdolna Sass, MTA KRTK KTI

Ágnes Szunomár, MTA KRTK VGI

Milica Uvalic, University of Perugia

Urmas Varblane, University of Tartu

Andrei Yakovlev, University - Higher School of Economics, Moscow

Members of the Executive Committee of the European Association for Comparative Economic Studies and

Wladimir Andreff, University of Paris 1-Centre d'Economie de la Sorbonne

Saul Estrin, London School of Economics

Domenico Nuti, Sapienza University, Rome

Tomasz Mickiewicz, Aston University, Birmingham

Marcello Signorelli, University of Perugia

Vittorio Valli, University of Torino

Hans-Jürgen Wagener

former presidents and members of the Advisory Board of the European Association for Comparative Economic Studies