GENDER STUDIES
Who we are

Bringing together a multitude of perspectives, we encourage students to re-think and deepen their understanding of the world through a critical examination of gender in culture and society across geographic and historical contexts. Our curriculum bridges the humanities and social sciences, and nurtures debate and interdisciplinary scholarship on gender and sexuality. We actively cooperate with other leading institutions in the field and are part of two international consortia, offering various study abroad opportunities to our students.

What we offer

MA in Gender Studies / 1 YEAR / This intensive program is for students who have a four-year bachelor’s degree and some grounding in gender studies or a related field. The program will introduce you to the major theoretical and methodological approaches to the field from a range of disciplines, including history, sociology, international relations, legal studies and literature, leading to original research on your chosen topic.

MA in Critical Gender Studies / 2 YEARS / This program is designed for applicants with a three-year bachelor’s degree or with limited background in gender studies. You can choose from two tracks: the research track with an extended research component or the applied track, including focused training in critical policy studies and an internship.

MA in Gender Studies (GEMMA) / 2 YEARS / GEMMA is the first Erasmus Mundus Master’s Degree in Women’s and Gender Studies, offered by a consortium of seven prestigious institutions and co-funded by the Horizon 2020 Framework Programme of the EU. Your study program will take you to two participating universities where you will earn a double degree. Learn more at gender.ceu.edu/erasmus-mundus-gemma and masteres.ugr.es/gemma.
“Through feminist pedagogical practices that foster multiple facets of understanding, including empathy and self-knowledge, our department strives to create learning environments where needs and differences are treasured and, when necessary, respectfully negotiated. As a scholar, a teacher and a mother I think that without these we risk raising generations who are socially disengaged and fail to realize their potential as thinking and feeling human beings.”
MA in European Women’s and Gender History (MATILDA) / 2 YEARS / Run jointly with the Department of History, this program provides expertise in women’s and gender history, as well as European history. The program is operated by a consortium of universities, two of which will be your home and host institutions. Learn more at history.ceu.edu/matilda

PhD in Comparative Gender Studies / This program focuses on critical, comparative, theoretical and empirical research in the field of gender studies. It will train you to apply traditional research methods (e.g. archival research, textual analysis, statistics, participant observation etc.), while exploring new territories. You will benefit from careful supervision, conference and research grants as well as teaching opportunities.
