Who we are

Breaking down disciplinary and geographical borders, our programs offer broad-based training in the history of Eastern, Central and Western Europe, the Eastern Mediterranean, the Middle East and Central Asia. Guided by an international faculty from 16 countries, you will take a closer look at the Habsburg, Romanov and Ottoman Empires as well as the totalitarian regimes of the 20th century through the lens of religious, cultural, intellectual and social history. You will also benefit from our innovative approach to researching, understanding and teaching comparative and transnational history.

What we offer

MA in Comparative History / 1 YEAR
The program is built around the comparative research of early modern, modern and contemporary history. It will encourage you to explore a multitude of scholarly approaches and disciplines, including oral history, historical anthropology, intellectual history, conceptual history, microhistory, urban history and gender history, for a better understanding of European and global processes.

MA in Comparative History: From 1500 to Present Time / 2 YEARS
This program is designed for students with a three-year bachelor’s degree in history or a bordering discipline. Jointly run with CEU’s Department of Medieval Studies, it offers two tracks: one in Late Antique, Medieval and Renaissance Studies, and the other in Comparative History from 1500 to Present Time.

PhD in Comparative History
Comparative history is often preached and seldom practiced in advanced historical studies. Our doctoral program focuses on comparing the historical experience in four distinct geo-cultural regions, Central, Southeastern and Eastern Europe, and the Eastern Mediterranean area, and other historical regions, such as Western Europe and the Middle East.
“I feel very lucky to have been a part of CEU’s History Department. Being interested in the history of Soviet architecture, I have gained a lot of inspiration from faculty and fellow students doing their own research in various fields. Working with them, I have developed a more nuanced perspective on my own work and learned a lot about new historical contexts and approaches. Budapest is a perfect place for such exchange, debates and making friends for life.”
MA in European Women’s and Gender History (MATILDA) / 2 YEARS /
Offered jointly with the Department of Gender Studies, this program provides expertise in women’s and gender history as well as European history. The program is operated by a consortium of universities, two of which will be your home and host institutions. Learn more at history.ceu.edu/matilda.
