Who we are
We combine international relations research with regional expertise in the European Union and the wider European neighborhood. Our primary focus is on the evolving role of the EU, Russia, China and the U.S. in international affairs, the rise of new powers, and the role of non-state actors in world politics and the global economy. We will help you master the analytical skills to cut through the complex web of global politics, along with in-demand practical skills in the job market.

What we offer

MA in International Relations / 1 YEAR / This program gives students a strong foundation in international affairs, stretching to contemporary issues of security and global economy. For a 360-degree perspective on international events, their causes and consequences, you will take courses in three different tracks: International Relations and Law, International Political Economy and Development, and International Political Sociology and History.

MA in International Relations / 2 YEARS / This program is designed for candidates who graduated from a three-year bachelor’s program, and wish to deepen their thinking about the workings of international relations. After a year of introductory courses, we offer students a combination of gateway and elective classes so they can build specialized knowledge in subfields such as conflict and security, or development.
ZHULDYZ ZHUNUSSOVA / KAZAKHSTAN

“I am very grateful for the opportunity to have studied a master’s program that is distinguished by its excellent faculty, who are always there to challenge you and make you think critically. The department brings together students from all over the globe that inspires you to look at the world from many different perspectives. It has been such an empowering experience that not only helped me grow academically but also personally.”
MA in Global Economic Relations / ONE YEAR, FULL-TIME / PART-TIME / MODULAR
This program equips students with a critical thinking mindset and analytical skills to prepare and evaluate economic policies and strategic decision-making in a global setting. Blending thorough training in international relations and economics, it sets you on a path to successfully navigating today's complex global economic landscape. This is a full fee-paying program.
