MA in Philosophy / 1 YEAR / 2 YEARS / Our MAs provide a solid grounding in the major areas of philosophy, such as ethics, epistemology and philosophy of mind. Working in small, interactive classes, you will also develop transferable skills like analytical and systematic thinking and reasoning, and you will learn how to analyze complex texts and arguments. Our MAs offer excellent preparation both for PhD studies and for responsible administrative and managerial positions.

Our program comes in two formats. The one-year program is geared towards candidates with a four-year bachelor’s degree in philosophy, while the two-year version is for graduates with a three-year bachelor’s degree in philosophy or in a related field. All MA students can also specialize in interdisciplinary certificate programs in Ethics and Political Philosophy, Political Thought and Religious Studies at CEU. ➜ philosophy.ceu.edu/masters-philosophy

PhD in Philosophy / This research-intensive program will train you to undertake independent research and will put you on the path to an academic career. There will be many opportunities for you to present and discuss work in progress throughout your studies and participate in the academic life of the department from attending events to organizing conferences. You will also be able to apply for CEU administered travel and research grants. There are teaching opportunities for all PhD students ➜ philosophy.ceu.edu/phd-philosophy

"The department is a vibrant intellectual community with a strong grounding in analytic philosophy. It is also a conducive space to do interdisciplinary research and is open to other traditions of philosophy. Students benefit from uniquely tailored courses taught by distinguished faculty, weekly colloquia with speakers of international repute and graduate conferences where students get to showcase their work. All in all, it is a great place to be a budding philosopher." — PRANAV AMBARDEKAR
