SOCIOLOGY AND SOCIAL ANTHROPOLOGY
Who we are

Marrying two disciplines, we embrace a diversity of perspectives and foster a critical understanding of the social world in the face of change and crisis. Bringing together students and professors from across the world, we offer a global curriculum, paired with rigorous training in diverse social science methodologies, including ethnography, interviews, discourse analysis, survey research, network analysis, quantitative and historical methods. Students gain hands-on experience in and outside of the classroom, from an extensive research period with opportunities to go into the field through the annual graduate conference to multimedia projects.

What we offer

MA in Sociology And Social Anthropology / 1 YEAR / This intensive program aims to broaden your knowledge of social structures and processes in a historical-comparative framework, including social theory, migration, religion, ethnicity, cultural policies, gender, class, globalization, modernity, urban development and state research.

MA in Sociology and Social Anthropology with optional specialization in Global and Urban Studies / 2 YEARS / With a strong, extensive research component, this program is recommended as a stepping stone for PhD studies for candidates interested in global and urban issues, particularly on how political, economic and social structures interact on the urban, local and global scale.
“Joining CEU’s Department of Sociology and Social Anthropology for my master’s studies was the best decision I could have made, and the time I have spent here has turned out to be the most intellectually stimulating phase of my life. The faculty have wide-ranging expertise and I have become particularly drawn to post-colonial studies. I appreciate the financial and academic support I received from the university, and I am very excited about the doors this experience has opened for me.”
PhD in Sociology and Social Anthropology / The doctoral program encourages theoretically-driven empirical research that embraces cross-disciplinary perspectives on a wide range of topics related to the department's expertise. A year of rigorous, yet flexible coursework will prepare you for a year of research, followed by an extended period of writing.
